

From the President

This Weekend kicks off the season proper, so get involved! We've got our Minkey Registration day on Saturday morning then our Premier League Mens team play their first game under coach Ian Smyth at 3.00pm at PHS. Get on down and support the boys!

Everyone would have noticed a lot of activity at Aquinas turf with some major maintenance being completed ahead of what is going to be a busy season. The new lights should also make a big difference - can't blame the lights for missing traps now!

It's also time to make sure everyone is registered and pay your fees. The fees have had to go up to cover a large jump in the Hockey Australia levy but the fees are still at the lower end of the scale across all metro clubs, and few have the exclusive use of a turf like us. You must register via reds.com.au and you can pay online or over the bar.

Cheers

Jamie Cook
President

- It's time to Register online at www.reds.com.au
- Obviously it's preferable to pay your fees up front.
- Another option is to pay instalments (say $100) over the next few weeks and knock it off before the season starts.
- Credit cards welcome (no Bitcoin)
- Or pay over the bar.
- EFT at BSB 066000 Account 10666630.

This will ease the pain for you and for our long suffering Treasurer.

Sponsor Focus

You've probably noticed the earthworks adjacent to the Hockey Club. The residential blocks are being created by sponsor Richard Noble. Here's their story:

RICHARD NOBLE
PROPERTY INTEGRITY COMMUNITY

Salter's Landing subdivision.

"Construction commenced in late 2017 to develop the strategically located landholding in Salter Point, approximately 10km from the CBD

Salter's Landing, named in honour of the area's founder, will see a piece of privately-owned land on the corner of Roebuck Drive and Redmond Street transformed to create 27 lots, ranging in size from 315m² to 485m², as well as a sizable reserve for community use.

Richard Noble, the developer responsible for the project, has a long list of accolades for its environmentally sensitive estate designs, including Cygnia Cove located nearby in Waterford.

Managing Director Alex Gregg says the same high standards have been applied to this new project.

"We recognise that this is a special piece of land and an opportunity to do something really quite unique within an established neighbourhood," he said.

"Over the past four years our design team has been working closely with the City of South Perth to ensure that Salter's Landing will be a harmonious addition to the area. We're also committed to making the most of modern design techniques to enhance the development's sustainability credentials."

The subdivision works will be undertaken over a six-month period, and include additional measures to optimise usability of the space and a significant program to retain or rehabilitate existing vegetation, including a 7.5m high jarrah tree located near what will form a new exit from the estate onto Roebuck Drive.

"As part of these initial works we'll be establishing an attractive public open space on the corner of Roebuck Drive and Redmond Street which will pay homage to Salter Point's timber heritage in its style, and be something all the Salter Point community can enjoy," Mr Gregg added.

The development site is currently enclosed within the boundaries of the Aquinas College oval and additional barriers will be erected to ensure student safety. Richard Noble will maintain its close working relationship with the school administration throughout the construction period

Calls for Registrations of Interest are underway to ascertain interest in the project, given the small number of lots available and interest from builders the opportunity is not going to last long.

"We're confident that Salter's Landing will take shape relatively quickly once the subdivision work is complete. In fact, we've already received a number of expressions of interest from members of the public who are keen to have the opportunity to build their own home in this popular suburb," Mr Gregg confirmed.

Property prices in Salter Point have experienced a consistently higher rate of growth over the past decade when compared with the Perth Metro Region average, and the suburb's current annual growth rate (to November 2017) is approximately 20 per cent higher than the Perth Metro Region average¹.
